

How can we develop our work further?

This question is important because...

New projects are usually relatively small scale in order to allow you to find out what works. You may then want to expand the services you can offer in some way.

Key messages

- ✓ Think of your original project as a pilot.
- ✓ Ask your existing participants how they think you could develop your programme. Use your learning from self-evaluation to help you decide. Draw on learning from other people's programmes too.
- ✓ You could potentially expand in a number of different ways, for example:
 - offer more sessions
 - include more people in sessions
 - train more people (staff or volunteers) to deliver sessions
 - offer the same service in a new location
 - offer the same kind of activity to a different target group
 - offer additional types of sessions to the same target group.
